THE THEATRE.

The farewell entertainment of the Vivian Troupe took place last evening, and we feel convinced that the result must have been as satisfactory to Mr. Vivian as the performance was to the audience, who were the largest that we have seen in the theatre since the engagement of Mr. Chas. Kean, some years ago. Mr. Vivian sang several new songs, which were well received; and Mr. Nesfield created quite a furore while singing "God bless the Prince of Wales." We cannot let Messrs. Vivian and Nesfield leave our town without congratulating them on the very nice entertainments which they have, in conjunction with Mlle. Garguin, favored this city with during their stay; the large attendance last night shows that the public, too, appreciate their efforts. To Mr. Church, the able manager of the troupe, much of the success is due, as the arrangements of the house have been most perfect, and his engagements have been met with the greatest promptitude.

A BLOODY BATTALION.

About ten o'clock on the night of the 1st of a S. F. dispatch, Charles Wilson, a notorious thief and John Simpson, aged only fourteen, had an altercation on the Barbary coast. It is said that the division of the proceeds of a robbery, Wilson slapped the boy's face, and the latter thereupon drew a knife into Wilson's neck, covering the jugular vein, and causing blood to spurt in streams over him and on the sidewalk. Wilson died in three minutes. Simpson was arrested at his father's house on Green street, and looked up to await the action of the coroner.

CHALLENGE RECEIVED.

By the steamer this morning, the Washington Base Ball Club of this city received a challenge from the Olympia Base Ball Club of Victoria, to play a match game at that city, at Beacon Hill, on Friday, the 6th of September, to commence at 10 o'clock P. M. As the Washington Club has not yet had time for a meeting, no course has been determined upon. Receiving this challenge was a surprise to them, as they were not expecting one so soon, nor before next summer. O. Tribune, Aug. 7th.

THE TRADE IN HIDES.

Previous to the last trip of the Delaware from the Islands, to this port, hides were being exported from the Province; now matters present quite a different aspect, for we find Messrs. Switzer of Belmont have consumption for all the hides the Province can produce; more than that, the Delaware brought a consignment from them from the Islands per last trip. Messrs. Dalby & Co. are agents for the purchase of hides for the above firm.

CHANGING THE NAME.

For several days past, says the Portland Bulletin, have been changing the name of "San Francisco" on the stern of all the steamers, and replacing it with the name of "Portland," designating this city as the place from which the steamer will hereafter sail, instead of San Francisco. The effect it will produce upon the minds of strangers who read, will be of sufficient significance to highlight its importance in the opinions of the public.

FROM THE SOUTH.

The North Pacific, with mails, a horse for Dr. Davis, and the following passengers, arrived yesterday afternoon: F. H. Lamb, Mr. Harburt, Mr. Denny, Capt. Gregory, Mr. Southgate, P. D. Moore and daughter, Miss Haynes, Miss Littlefield, Mrs. Mitchell, Miss Wilson, Capt. Hinds, Messrs. Johnson, Essigs, Jerome, Pettie, Conlter, Miller, Dickson, Carter, Ganvis, Provan, DeSneun, Peterson, Brakfield, Appleton, Welton, Tomleson and Baken.

GALVANIZED IRON.

The manufacture of this article is largely on the increase in England, and is becoming one of the most important branches of the iron trade. Messrs. Braly & Co., have lately introduced a new make in corrugated iron, which is rapidly supplanting all other; it is largely shipped to Australia and the Cape; one firm in Melbourne alone, having a standing order in Europe for 100 tons per month.

EXTRAORDINARY DISPATCH.

The ship Pudgey Dawson unable to get a crew at Port Townsend unless at an exorbitant rate, was towed to this port. The master came ashore yesterday morning at 10 o'clock to seek landing; in half an hour he was supplied by the shipping master, with a full crew for England. This is an unexampled despatch.

THE BARGE.

The Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works has given orders to the superintendent of the Alexandria suspension bridge, to allow pack animals to cross singly. This is a move in the right direction.

Further still of Shipley and Brown.

On yesterday week these two fellows, who had been driven away from Eagle Harbor by Sheriff Williams and posse, put in an appearance at Tulip Reservation, W. T., for the purpose of having Brown's wounds attended to, who in the fight with Sheriff Williams' party had been shot through the back, just above the hip. They applied to Dr. Smith of the Reservation, for aid, stating to him that they had been hunting and that Shipley had accidentally shot his partner. The Doctor put the wounded man under the influence of chloroform and extracted a heavy bullet from the wound. While the Doctor was waiting on the wounded man, Shipley was laying in a stock of provisions. Word coming to Sheriff Hirsch that the desperadoes were on the Reservation, he, in company with Mr. Andrews, went to arrest them. Shipley's good luck, however, again saved him. Seeing the Sheriff he took to the woods, leaving his boots, gun, knife and tools. The pursuers fired nine shots after him, none of which took effect. During the excitement in pursuit of Shipley, Brown also took to the woods and escaped. The Doctor thinks that Brown's wound will prove fatal should inflammation set in, which is likely to be the case. In the evening of the same day, Shipley again made his appearance at Hogan's camp, a short distance from the Reservation, since which time nothing has been heard of him.

The Olympia Tribune.

On Monday, Capt. Libby says Brown and Shipley, the pirates, entered Tulip, wood, hungry, and desperate, in search of food, and, for Brown, surgical treatment. While there, Dr. H. A. Smith extracted a bullet from Brown, which he received near Port Blakely. The people of the place, ascertaining who the people were, began getting together with the intention of taking and dealing with them, according to what was said; but they decided to wait until they had more information.

Base Ball.

With regard to a paragraph taken from the Olympia Tribune, and appearing elsewhere in this journal, the letter we publish below is a copy of the challenge sent to Olympia from Victoria; moreover, it was perfectly understood by both Clubs when our boys were in Olympia, that a return match was to be played this season in Victoria. A definite reply to the challenge is expected by Monday's steamer:

To the President and Members of the Washington Base Ball Club, Olympia, W. T.

Club held Friday, August 3d, it was resolved to extend to you a challenge to play a match game at Base Ball, on Friday, Sept. 6th, 1912, at Beacon Hill; game to commence at 10 o'clock, P. M., and was instructed to notify you of the same. A waiting your earliest answer, I have the honor to be, respectfully yours,

JOSHUA DAVIES, President.

Washington Territory.

The Seattle Dispatch of yesterday has the following: The locating survey under Capt. Birnie, from Hodgdon's north, has been completed, bringing it to White River, and the contracts for the building of the 40 miles will undoubtedly be let at an early day, which will make Seattle the base of supplies, not only for the 40 miles, but the line north, as Portland has been with the other 65 miles from the Columbia River. The large amount of money that will be distributed here, directly and indirectly, by the N. P. R. R., the large trade we are now receiving at the centre of the lumber districts, makes Seattle the Commercial City of Puget Sound, with the prospects of soon being the second city of the Pacific Coast.

The Capital stock having been authorized, the "Puget Sound Telegraph Company" was fully organized on Friday last by the election of the following officers: Trustees—O. F. Gerrish, E. S. Taylor, D. C. H. Rothchild, Cyrus Walker and Wm. Ranton; President, D. C. H. Rothchild; Secretary, Fred. Drew; Treasurer, Cyrus Walker; Superintendent, J. W. Sweeney. The line is about 40 miles in length, connecting Port Townsend with Seattle by the way Port Discovery, Port Gamble, Port Madison, Port Blakely and Freeport. The work was inaugurated at Port Townsend on Tuesday last, with appropriate ceremony, by the erection of poles for the first mile, under the energetic management of Mr. Sweeney will be pushed to rapid completion.

Rev. Mr. Res, Presbyterian minister of Port Townsend, will go to Port Townsend for the purpose of locating there. Mr. Res will organize a Presbyterian Church at Port Townsend and will also preach on Whidbey Island.

The Olympia Dramatic Troupe were to give a performance at Seattle last evening.

The Olympia Tribune has the following: A private letter, accompanied by an Edinburgh newspaper, states that Barker's panorama of the Pacific Coast, which was exhibited in Scotland, created a marked sensation in Scotland. Readers will remember its exhibition in Olympia about a year ago. The paper alluded to speaks of this panorama in glowing terms, and crowds flock night to see it. On the last night the receipts amounted to $1,100. Mr. H. Gillard, late of Victoria, is exhibiting it, and coming money out of it. Its author, Mr. Barker, let a fortune slip through his fingers when he parted with this panorama.

Road and street improvements are going on all around and within the town. In no other year in the history of the place has there been so much or such good work as during the present.

We understand that several steamers, including the Zephyr, Chehalis and Comet, are tied up at Seattle, for a non-compliance with all the provisions of the steamboat law. Passenger boats are required to be supplied with life boats, life preservers, life buoys and other things, that cannot be got short of San Francisco or New York.

No bidders appeared for the University lands, offered at auction last Thursday. They will not be sold until somebody wants to buy them.

M. P. R. R. Surveys in W. T.

(Seattle Dispatch, August 1st.)

Op. Morris, Chief Engineer of the Pacific Division, arrived in this city from the Skagit Pass on Thursday last. We have no doubt, from the reports of the above mentioned surveys are being pushed, that all the engineering problems West of the Rocky Mountains will be solved by the first of October. There are 6 parties in the field in the Pacific Division exclusive of the above mentioned surveys, and Capt. Sheets, which ran the line up the Skagit, met Ward's party coming from the East, 12 miles beyond the Summit on the 19th inst. Ward remains on the summit to develop a pass by a new route, and survey, and will then run eastward to the Cour D'Alene Pass. Capt. Sheets was in this city on Saturday last fitting out his party to run a line from the Snoqualmie Pass down the Snoqualmie river, and on to the coast.

Haberham's line on the Shore line. Capt. Birnie was also in town on Saturday, and reports his party at the crossing on White river. The line from Hodgdon's, the present forty mile terminus, to White, the proposed terminus, is a construction with long tangents and light grades. This line will be continued along the West shore of Lake Washington and thence over the divide and on north till a connection with the line of Shore and Haberham. Haberham's line is now about ten miles North of Tulip and will be run on north to the British line.

The Presidential Contest.

The Hon. (C) John Morrissey of New York city, has recently been in the N. Y. Herald, in which he offers to bet as follows: $5,000 that Greely carries the State of New York; $5,000 that Greely carries the State of Pennsylvania; and $5,000 that Greely is elected President of the United States, provided, the Democracy make no nomination; $7,500 of the money be put up when the bet is accepted, and $7,500 the last of June. It will be seen by the following which we clip from the Herald that all his propositions are accepted.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 8, 1912.

To the Editor of the Herald:

The three propositions made by Mr. John Morrissey I wish to accept, to wit:—

First—I will bet $5,000 Horace Greely will not carry the State of New York.

Second—I will bet $5,000 Horace Greely will not carry the State of Pennsylvania.

Third—I will bet $5,000 Horace Greely will not be elected President of the United States at the ensuing election, the action of the Democratic party to have nothing to do with my acceptance of the above propositions. All three bets to be accepted together, and $7,500 to be put up in responsible hands where and when Mr. Morrissey shall designate; the same to be made known to me through the columns of the New York Herald. Most respectfully,

JOHN YOUNG.

An Executioner's Debut.

On June 17th, the new executioner of France, M. de Paris, made his debut in the improved guillotine, invented by the last headman shortly before he died, lopped off the head of a desperate criminal who murdered a woman a few months ago. The improved machine, it is said, raised the head of the guillotine, and consequently it is almost impossible for spectators to get a glimpse of what passes. It can be taken to pieces and packed up with great ease and is altogether a handy instrument. M. de Paris travels about the country with a large van, which comprises a bedroom, a kitchen and a cupboard for "les bons de justice," and the requisite sawdust. This van was found necessary when the country executioners were done away with, and the office was concentrated in the cases of M. de Paris, who often found it difficult to procure bed and lodging in the place he visited. On June 20th, M. de Paris was to have operated on a man called Louis, who had a hand in killing a priest and a woman, and was charged with the crime, but at the last moment an accomplice, condemned to death by default, was apprehended, and Dore and two men, called Mayor, all under sentence of death, were captured as witnesses on the trial of the newly-captured culprit.

Trial of the "Woodwick" Infant.

Some interesting experiments in gunnery were recently made at Shobden, near England. A correspondent who was present thus alludes to the trial of the celebrated 35-ton gun.

The next experiment, he remarked, was the most important, being the first trial of the "Woodwick" infant for penetration. It was fired twice each time with 110 pounds of pebble powder and a shell weighing 691 pounds empty or 700 pounds with its bursting, at distance of 70 yards from a target composed of 18 inches of iron and 12 inches of wood, making 304 inches all. The velocity of flight and penetrative impetus, are the same at 70 or at 1,000 yards with ordinary shell description, but the gun was fired at the lesser distance in order to make sure of hitting the mark. The iron of the target was also arranged on a new principle—i. e. without any immediate backing, but the space behind it. The projectile in this case was obliged to strike the iron twice, driving it back the first time, and so losing much of its velocity, but if cracked by the first impact, the fissures would widen and spread at the second blow.

The concussion of the discharge was of course immense, and the splinters of the shell hurled many hundred feet in all directions. On examining the target the shell was found firmly imbedded therein, about two feet deep. It had exploded rather too soon, and some of its power was consequently lost. The rear of the target suffered in no way beyond having one rib broken and a few rivets started, but the entire frame had been driven back some three inches. The second shell was filled with sand, and as the iron of the target had been driven back by the previous shot, there was little or no air space. The shell went right through, and fell in the rear, but the body of the shell was left in. No serious damage was effected on the target proper, and a target has thus been found which, with a little addition, is capable of resisting the heaviest gun in the world. A moving six-foot target, driven on the sands by four horses, about 400 yards distant, was next fired at, with 10 inch and 9 inch rifled muzzle-loading guns, and a 40 pound breech-loading gun. About fifteen rounds were fired, and although many shots were wasted, and few would have missed the side of a ship, only one from the 40-pounder really went through the target.
